FRENCH RAILROADS GET ORDERS TO BE READY TO MOVE TROOPS TO FRONT

By JOHN DE GANDT

PARIS, March 2—French railroads were ordered today to hold themselves in readiness to transport troops to the German frontier. The order was the most important of the series issued by military and government authorities to prepare for military movement to force obedience to the Allied reparation demands.

French forces now on the frontier are announced to be as follows: 110,000 infantrymen, 3 corps of cavalry, 1,000 guns and 300 air planes.

The most important feature of the military preparations was declared to be the concentration of cavalry on the Rhine bridgehead serving as a threat to the Germans before the actual advance begun.

In addition the army of occupation and other forces are awaiting the call to action. Foremost among these are the Colonial troops which again are arriving by way of Marseilles.

It became known today that the government had reliable information several days ago that the Germans had decided not to sign the reparations agreement and that Marshals Foch and Weigand immediately drafted plans for an invasion of Germany. These plans were said to have been presented to the conference early in the London session.

GERMAN REPRESENTATIVES TO MEET SUPREME COUNCIL AGAIN TOMORROW

By ED. L. KEEN

LONDON, March 2—An allied council of war met here today. The Premiers met military leaders to draw up an ultimatum to Germany and decide what steps to take if Germany persists in her refusal to pay the fifty-five billion dollar indemnity. The councillors were in constant communication with districts in France where troops are prepared for a forward movement.

The German delegations whose offer of reparation yesterday was branded generally as "an absurdity" is to meet the Supreme Council tomorrow. It was indicated there would be no revision of figures submitted but that the Allies would make definite plans for the use of force if the German delegation does not accept the terms. The German delegation persists that its proposal to pay $7,290,000,000 is the best it can offer.

They argue the weakness of German industry, unfavorable rate of exchange, and that the effect of the long period of debt on the workers make it impossible to accept the Allied demands.

LONDON, March 2—Preliminary movement of French forces to compel German obedience to the Allied reparation demands were discussed by the Allied Supreme Council today. A further session was scheduled for this afternoon to decide the part each Ally will play in exerting pressure on Germany.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN OF PENNSY PASSENGER KILLED AT NEWPORT, PA.

HARRISBURG, March 2—Two men were killed and a score bruised when passenger train No. 32 of the Pennsylvania railroad ran into the rear end of freight train No. 2 at Bailey Water Crossing a few miles west of Newport at six o'clock this morning. The dead are: W. J. Lines, aged 56 of Altoona, engineer of the passenger train and E. W. Smith, aged 42 of Huntingdon, fireman of the passenger train. The engineer and fireman were dug from the debris. When found Engineer Lines was dead. He had been scalded. It took an hour to recover Smith's body. He was rushed to the Newport Hospital where first aid was administered, and was brought to the Harrisburg hospital at ten o'clock this morning where he died a few minutes later. Internal injuries and shock were the cause of death.

The cause of the wreck has not been ascertained. It occurred just as the freight began to clear away. It is believed the crew of the freight failed to set the proper signals or that the passenger train crew did not see the signals on account of the fog.

HOUSE COMMITTEE VOTES TO CENSURE JUDGE LANDIS ON DUAL JOB HOLDING

WASHINGTON, March 2—Judge K. M. Landis of Chicago was officially censured today by the House Judiciary Committee because he is holding two offices; that of federal judge and arbitrator for the base ball clubs. With but one dissenting vote the committee decided that the Judge could not "perform his official duties" and be an arbitrator for the base ball clubs. An investigation ordered with a view to definitely determining whether the impeachment proceedings should be pressed against him will be recommended to the new Congress. There is no time for such an investigation by the present Congress it was said. The Committee hearing was brought about by a resolution introduced by Representative Welty of Ohio. Chairman Volstead of Minnesota was the only member of the committee who did not favor the censuring of Landis.

WOODROW WILSON'S PLACE IN HISTORY

AN ESTIMATE OF OUR PRESIDENT BY GENERAL JAN SMUTS HIS COLLEAGUE AT THE MEMORABLE PARIS CONFERENCE

Who Declares Woodrow Wilson Will be Held
By The Americans of The Future as Immortal
As They Now Hold the Memory of Lincoln and Washington.

POINTS OUT WILSON'S FATAL ERROR

The following article by Gen. J. C. Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, prepared by him for the "New York Evening Post" is sent to our readers with the compliments of the "Evening Post" and at the request of Gen. Smuts.

General the Right Honorable Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, served with President Wilson on the League of Nations Commission of the Peace Conference.

Gen. Smuts was an active leader of the Boer army in the field in the Boer war. He is a graduate of Cambridge University in England, served as State Attorney for the South African Republic, and was well known as a member of the bar at Cape Town.

Accepting the outcome of the Boer War, he entered the service of the British Government, becoming Colonial Secretary for the Transvaal in 1907 and exercising a leading influence as a delegate in the National Convention of 1910, which drew up the Constitution for the present Union of South Africa. He was Minister of Defence of the South African Government and commanded the troops in the campaign against the Germans in East Africa in 1916-17. Promoted to be an honorary lieutenant-general, he was the South African representative in the Imperial War Cabinet in 1917-18. This led to his prominence in the Peace Conference and to his close contact with President Wilson. On February 8 of this year Premier Smuts and the South African Party won a decisive victory at the polls over Gen. Hertzog and those who advocated the secession of South Africa from the British Empire.

WOODROW WILSON'S PLACE IN HISTORY

By the General the Right Honorable Jan Christian Smuts,
Premier of the Union of South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa, January 8, 1921—It has been suggested that I should write a short estimate and appraisal of the work of President Wilson on the termination of his Presidency of the United States of America. I feel I must comply with the suggestion. I feel I may not remain silent when there is an opportunity to say a word of appreciation for the work of one with whom I came into close contact at a great period and who rendered the most signal service to the great human cause.

There is a great saying of Mommsen (I believe) in reference to the close of Hannibal's career in failure and eclipse. "On those whom the gods love they lavish infinite joys and infinite sorrows." It has come back to my mind in reference to the close of Wilson's career. For a few brief moments he was not only the leader of the greatest state in the world; he was raised to far giddier heights and became the centre of the world's hopes. And then he fell, misunderstood and rejected by his own people, and his great career closes apparently in signal and tragic defeat.

What is the explanation of this tremendous tragedy, which is not solely American, which closely concerns the whole world? Of course, there are purely American elements in the explanation which I am not competent to speak on. But besides the American quarrel with President Wilson there is something to be said on the great matters in issue. On these I may be permitted to say a few words.

The position occupied by President Wilson in the world's imagination at the close of the Great War and at the beginning of the peace conference was terrible in its greatness. It was a terrible position for any mere man to occupy. Probably no human being in all history did the hopes, the prayers, the aspirations of so many millions of his fellows turn with such poignant intensity as to him at the close of the war. At a time of the deepest darkness and despair, he had raised aloft a light to which all eyes had turned. He had spoken divine words of healing and consolation to a broken humanity. His lofty moral idealism for a moment to dominate the brutal passions which had torn the old world asunder. And he was supposed to possess the secret which would remake the world on fairer lines. The peace which Wilson was bringing to the world was expected to be God's peace. Prussianism lay crushed; brute force had failed utterly. The moral character of the universe had been most signally vindicated. There was a universal vague hope of a great moral peace, of a new world order arising visibly and immediately on the ruins of the old. This hope was not a mere superficial sentiment. It was the intense expression at the end of the war of the inner moral and spiritual force which had upborne the peoples during the dark night of the war and had nerved them to an effort almost beyond human strength. Surely, surely, God had been with them in that long night of agony. He was the victory; His should be the peace. And President Wilson was looked upon as the man to make this great peace. He had voiced the great ideals of the new order; his great utterances had become the contractual basis for the armistice and the peace. The idealism of Wilson would surely become the reality of the new order of things in the peace treaty.

In this atmosphere of extravagant, almost frenzied expectation he arrived at the Paris peace conference. Without hesitation he plunged into that inferno of human passions. He went down into the Pit like a second Hercules to bring back the fair Alcestis of the world's desire. There were six months of agonized waiting, during which the world situation rapidly deteriorated. And then he emerged with the peace treaty. It was not a Wilson peace, and he made a fatal mistake in somehow giving the impression that the peace was in accord with his Fourteen Points and his various declarations. Not so the world had understood him. This was a Pagan peace, the same sort of peace as the victor had dictated to the vanquished for thousands of years. It was not Alcestis, it was a haggard unlovely woman with features distorted with hatred, greed, and selfishness, and the little Child that the Woman carried was scarcely noticed. Yet it was for the saving of the Child that Wilson had labored until he was a physical wreck. Let our other great statesmen and leaders enjoy their well-earned honors for their unquestioned success at Paris. To Woodrow Wilson, the apparent failure, belongs the undying honor, which will grow with the growing centuries of having saved the "little Child that shall lead them yet." No other statesman but Wilson could have done it. And he did it.

The people, the common people of all lands, did not understand the significance of what had happened. They saw only that hard, unlovely Prussian peace, and the great Hope died in their hearts. The great disillusionment took its place. The most receptive mood for a new start the world had been in for centuries passed away. Faith in their governors and leaders was largely destroyed, and the foundations of human government were shaken in a way which will be felt for generations. The Paris peace lost an opportunity as unique as the Great War itself. In destroying the moral idealism born of the sacrifices of the war it did almost as much as the war itself in shattering the structure of western civilization.

And the odium of all this fell especially on President Wilson. Round him the hopes had centered; round him the disillusion and despair now gathered. Popular opinion largely held him responsible for the bitter disappointment and grievous failure. The cynics scoffed; his friends were silenced in the universal disappointment. Little or nothing had been expected from the other leaders; the whole failure was put to the account of Woodrow Wilson. And finally America for reasons of her own joined the pack and at the end of it was his own people who tore him to pieces.

Will this judgment, born of momentary disillusion and disappointment, stand in future, or will it be reversed? The time has not come to pass final judgment on either Wilson or any of the other great actors in the drama at Paris. The personal estimates will depend largely on the interpretation of that drama in the course of time. As one who saw and watched things from the inside I feel convinced that the present popular estimates are largely superficial and will not stand the searching test of time. And I have no doubt whatever that Wilson has been harshly, unfairly, unjustly dealt with, and that he has been made a scapegoat for the sins of others. Wilson made mistakes, and there were occasions when I ventured to sound a warning note. But it was not his mistakes that caused the failure for which he has been held mainly responsible.

Let us admit the truth, however bitter it is to do so for those who believe in human nature. It was not Wilson who failed. The position is far more serious. It was the human spirit itself that failed at Paris. It is no use passing judgments and making scapegoats of this or that individual statesman or group of statesmen. Idealists make a great mistake in not facing the real facts sincerely and resolutely. They believe in the power of the spirit, in the goodness which is at the heart of things, in the triumph which is in store for the good moral ideals of the race. But this faith only too often leads to an optimism which is sadly and fatally at variance with

BICKERING OF SUPREME COUNCIL IN EFFORT TO ENFORCE REPARATIONS TAKEN AS MERE THREAT BY GERMANY

LONDON, March 2—German delegates here admitted today that their country is at the mercy of the Allies. The German people will be unable to resist an invasion even as far as Berlin, they said.

"Let them come in and run the country," explained Ministerial Director Von Simpson, right hand man of Foreign Minister Von Simons.

"Wait and see," was Von Simons' comment. The German Foreign Minister declared he will resign if the Allies take military action. Apparently he did not think it would be necessary.

If there was any chagrin over their summary dismissal from the Allies conference today Von Simons and his party did not show it. Germany held to the hope that the Allied threats are mere "sword rattlings," an echo of the same sort heard at the Spa conference.

Von Simons and his delegation is stronger than any previous German delegation and it is counting on having the strong support of Berlin. The Germans insist that the Allies could not take military action before May 1, holding that there will be no breach of the Versailles treaty before that day. With their first proposal rejected and with German counter proposals for consideration they believe it will be necessary for the Allies to make new demands for damages and reparation.

Germany will attempt no formal resistance if the Allies enter their country, Herr Von Kauffman, chief of the press section of the German delegation told the United Press today.

HON. CHAMP CLARK, FORMER SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE, DIED THIS AFTERNOON

WASHINGTON, March 2—Champ Clark, former Speaker of the House and Democratic leader died here today. Clark has been ill for some time suffering from pleurisy, complicated by stomach trouble. Death has been expected for several days, his physicians having given up hope of his recovery. Clark would have been 71 years of age next Monday. Three days before his birthday Clark would have retired from Congress where he served continuously since 1895, having been speaker for 8 years.

In 1910, as Democratic leader, he took a prominent part in forcing the overthrow of Speaker Joseph Cannon and his prominence in that fight made him a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination for president at Baltimore in 1912. He had the majority in the convention but was beaten on the 46th ballot by Woodrow Wilson. Clark was bitter over his defeat for a few years but at his death he and Wilson were great friends.

The veteran Congressman was loved by young and old members of the House. One of his close friends was James Mann, long his opponent on the floor.

BUSY MORNING IN CRIMINAL COURT GIVING SENTENCES

Travesty In Dragging of Du-Bois Youngsters Into Court
On Charges Made By One Of Defendants.

4 YEAR OLD CRIMINAL (?)

A number of law violators were before Judge Bell for sentence today and several liquor law violators were handed salty doses, while others fared much better.

Patsy Carmello, one of the proprietors of the DuBois poker room raided by the sheriff on Saturday last, entered a plea of guilty, and was pretty severely grilled by District Attorney in an effort to get at the facts surrounding the poker joint and the operation of same generally. It appeared from the district attorney's questions that Carmello had told him a story yesterday, but got mixed up on his details today. The poker joint was in the cellar of the building under the pool room run by Carmello and he said he had rented the basement several months ago to a fellow named Keith from California, Pa., and after he quit Angelo Carmello rented same paying him $35 per month for it. The gambling den was connected with the pool room by an electric wire, which ran from a push button in the pool room to an alarm buzzer in the basement. It refused to tip off the raiders because the batteries had gone blooie.

One of the players taken in the raid named Coleman was also called and examined, but sentence on the defendants will not be given until all have been heard.

Bert Kephart, of Madera, was sentenced to pay $50 fine and costs for having a slot machine in his pool room and barber shop.

Considerable time was taken up in juvenile court with a hearing in which 17 DuBois kiddies, ranging in age from 4 to 14 years, were the desperate defendants. These alleged desperados were charged by Patsy Carmello with malicious mischief. Their particular crime was hurling stones through the windows of a vacant house owned by Carmello near the iron furnace at DuBois.

The prosecutor in this case "killed two birds with one stone," as it were, and was at no extra expense in attending the hearing, as he was here to enter a plea of guilty to running a gambling house in DuBois.

This case could well have been settled with a shingle at home and demonstrated that some DuBois parents are more to blame than their offspring.

Dominick Amato, of Madera, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of actual results. It is the realist and not the idealist who is generally justified by events. We forget that the human spirit, the spirit of goodness and truth in the world, is still only an infant crying in the night, and that the struggle with darkness is as yet mostly an unequal struggle.

Paris proved this terrible truth once more. It was not Wilson, who failed there, but humanity itself. It was not the statesman that failed, so much as the spirit of the peoples behind them. The hope, the aspiration for a new world order of peace and right and justice however deeply and universally felt was still only feeble and ineffective in comparison with the dominant national passions which found their expression in the Peace Treaty. Even if Wilson had been on of the great designers of the human race, he could not have had the Peace. Knowing the Peace Conference as I knew it from within, I feel convinced in my own mind that not the greatest man born of woman in the history of the race would have saved that situation. The great hope was to the heralding of the coming dawn, as the peoples thought, but only a dim intimation of some far off event towards which we shall yet have to pass many a long weary month. Sincerely as we believed in the moral ideals for which we had fought, the temptation at Paris of a huge booty to be divided proved too great. And in the end not only the leaders but the peoples preferred a bit of booty here, a strategic frontier there, a coal field or an oil well, an addition to their population or their resources—to all the faint allurements of the ideal. As I said at the time, the real peace was still to come, and it could only come from a new spirit in the peoples themselves.

What was really saved at Paris was the Child—the Covenant of the League of Nations. The political realists who had their eye on the loot were prepared—however reluctantly—to throw that innocent little son to President Wilson and his fellow idealists. After all, there was not much harm in it, it threatened no present national interest, and it gave great pleasure to a number of good unpractical people in most countries. Above all, President Wilson had to be conciliated, and this was the last and the greatest of the fourteen points on which he had set his heart and by which he was determined to stand or fall. And so he got his way. But it is a fact that only a man of his great power and influence and dogged determination could have carried the Covenant through that Peace Conference. Others had seen with him the great vision, others had perhaps given more thought to the elaboration of the great plan. But his was the power and the will that carried it through. The Covenant is Wilson's souvenir to the future of the world. No one will ever deny him that honor.

The honor is very great, indeed, for the Covenant is one of the great creative documents of human history. The Peace Treaty will fade into merciful oblivion and its provisions will be gradually obliterated by the great human tides sweeping over the world. But the Covenant will stand as sure as fate. Forty-two nations gathered round it at the first meeting of the League at Geneva. And the day is not far off when all the free peoples of the world will gather round it. It must succeed, because there is no other way for the future of civilization. It does not realize the great hopes born of the war, but it provides the only method and instrument by which the course of time those hopes can be realized. Speaking as one who has some right to speak on the fundamental conceptions, objects, and methods of the Covenant, I feel sure that most of the present criticism is based on misunderstandings. These misunderstandings will clear away one by one the peoples still outside the Covenant will fall in behind this banner, under which the human race is going to march forward to triumphs of peaceful organization and achievement undreamt of by us children to an unhappier era. And the leader who, in spite of apparent failure, succeeded in inscribing his name on that banner has achieved the most enviable and enduring immortality. Americans of the future will yet proudly and gratefully rank him with Washington and Lincoln, and his fame will have a more universal significance than theirs.

Irish Poplin Supreme.

Ireland leads the world in the manufacture of poplin and, although most of the silk used is of foreign manufacture, the Dublin weavers treat it in such a manner as to make Irish poplin a distinct fabric. It is composed of worsted made from the finest wool, and silk in combination, and no makers but the Irish seem to be able to produce the softness of texture and brilliance of coloring that is so characteristic of the best poplin. This is attributed to the peculiarity of the Dublin water and the skill and knowledge of the makers.

Fertile Soil Carried to Ocean.

The total annual rainfall upon all the land of the globe amounts to 25,847 cubic miles, according to the United States geological survey, and of this quantity, 6,524 cubic miles drains off through rivers to the sea. A cubic mile of river water weighs about 1,235,655,000 tons and carries in solution an average of about 420,000 tons of foreign matter. In all about 2,735,000,000 tons of solid matter is thus carried annually to the ocean, and a good deal of this is naturally the fertile soil washed from the fields.—Farm Life.

Case Not Entirely Hopeless.

On the Brink!

There had been a certain amount of treachery in the discussion, which centered around the relative virtue and accomplishment of the two sexes. "You men," said the advanced young woman, "think a great deal of yourselves because you think there is a shortage of your kind. Personally, I should not mind in the least living in a world where the men and girls were separated by an ocean." The daring bachelor smiled at her. "I dare say you are right," he agreed. "Still, in the event you mention, I'm certain that there would be a large number of women drowned."—London Morning Post.

Vast Riches in Comstock Lode.

The Comstock lode produced $340,000,000 of gold and silver in the 30-year period from 1860 to 1890, the largest annual output being in 1877, when $33,000,000 was taken out. The vein was four miles in length and great pockets in the rocks were filled with ore. It was mined to a depth of 3,500 feet, when inflowing water was so hot further depths could not be reached.

The Death Cup.

The death cup is a very poisonous mushroom of wide distribution. It ranges in color from pure white to more common form in the United States, to olive or yellow, and is so called from the prominent valve. It contains phallin and is almost invariably fatal when eaten.

This apple cake, which comes from Denmark, must be tried to be appreciated:

Apple Cake.—Prepare the following: one egg, one-half cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of milk, one cupful of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix well and divide into six portions. This will make two cakes. Roll each of the portions to fit a layer cake tin, let stand in a cool place for half an hour, then bake. Spread the three layers with apple sauce and over the top place whipped cream sweetened and flavored. Dot with bits of jelly and serve. The rest of the mixture may be made into cookies or baked and kept for another cake.

Place one cupful of chopped, mixed soup vegetables in a kettle, lay on them the fish and pour over the stock, cover and let cook until the fish is done. Lift the fish carefully to a hot platter and pour over it hot lemon dressing made as follows: Beat two eggs, add one-third of a cupful of lemon juice, enough fish stock strained to make one cupful; cook in a double boiler until thickened. Add butter a few bits at a time and pour the boiling hot sauce over the fish. Serve when cold. The butter may be omitted.

Belgium Potatoes.—Fry six slices of bacon until half done, remove from the pan and add one sliced onion. Cut three potatoes in one-inch cubes, add bacon, onion and two cupfuls of water, a bay leaf, a pinch of thyme and salt if needed. Cook uncovered until the potatoes are tender.

Spiced Baked Apples.—Core half a dozen large apples and fill the cavities with a mixture prepared as follows: One-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of water, two tablespoonfuls of cracker crumbs and one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon. Bake in a hot oven with a little water in the pan.

Guatemala.

Guatemala has an area of 48,200 square miles, slightly larger than that of the state of New York. It has a population of about 2,000,000, which is approximately 20 per cent of the entire population of Central America. A large part of the population of Guatemala is of Indian blood, unmixed with the blood of Europeans. In this respect Guatemala differs from its four neighboring republics, in three of which the majority of the population is of mixed blood, and in one of which the Indians were exterminated.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

An Unusual Condition

But it is an acknowledged fact that many individuals arrive at final conclusions before they know the condition that should be considered before making any decision. On the other hand, it is true that experts can often give correct decisions in a few moments but how many are experts? You know that many people today are making decisions because they permitted opportunities to slip through their fingers without doing themselves justice in giving those opportunities their due consideration. Who must be the judge? Certainly you cannot be bothered with every proposition that is presented but anything bearing on personal liberties, finances, severe handicaps to pleasure and business, etc., demands your consideration. For instance 1. The Todd Brothers for more than twenty-one years have been studying one subject. 2. For the last five years, under a severe ruling, their products have withstood the onslaught of their competitors. 3. Their product is meant for you. 4. You will protect many things. Why? 5. There is one thing you forgot. Your signature can be stolen and with it in the hands of a thief, everything else you are now enjoying. But, of course, that is your business and you have the privilege of making your judgment but it is a hard choice on one taking today. Think of your signature on a check. If you are in your own right as well as in your own check. If you are in your own right as well as in your own check. If you are in your own right as well as in your own check.

FORESTER DAGUE PREPARING FIGHT AGAINST FIRES

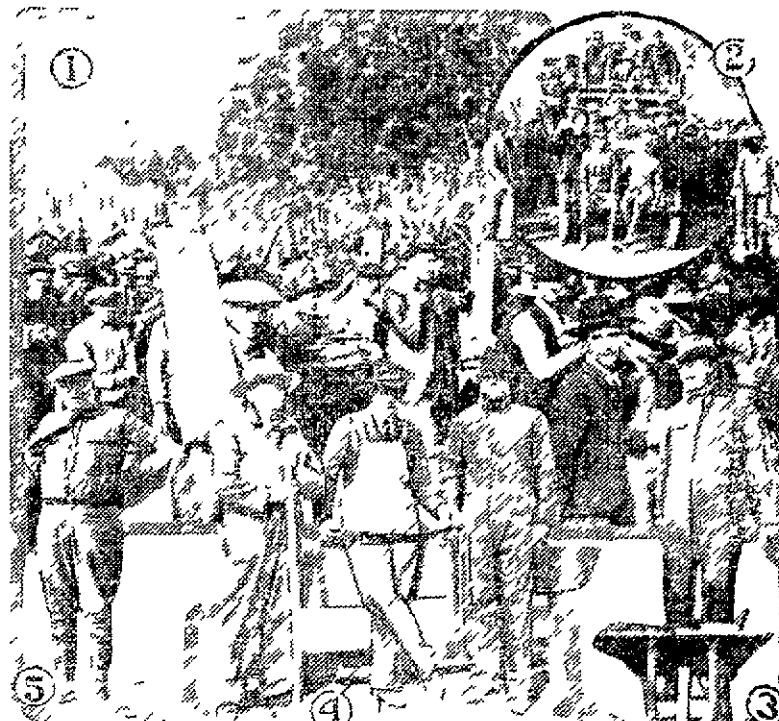

Will Hold a Meeting in The Interest of Fire Protection Here on Wednesday, March 9th.

URGES ALL TO GIVE AID

Harrisburg, March 2.—District Forester Dague, of Clearfield, has arranged for a meeting in the interest of fire protection on March 9, at Clearfield. He has notified the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry that individuals and corporations operating steam locomotives through forest regions in his district are co-operating with the department of forestry better than they have in the past.

In all parts of the Moshannon State Forest, Forester Dague said, corporations have arranged to eliminate forest fire hazards. They realize the unusual weather conditions this winter indicate a blizzarding forest fire season. Some of the companies already have begun clearing and burning safety stumps, and are using new safety stumps in the forest.

WHY THEY FAILED

Clearfield business men should be interested in a report sent out by the government showing the percentage of failure and their causes during 1920. Of course it forms rather disheartening reading, this story of the other fellow's misfortune, but it carries a lesson of value and one that deserves careful study.

The high spot in the report is that of the entire number of concerns which failed in the United States in a single year, more than 90 per cent. of them—think of that—more than 90 per cent. of them were establishments that did not advertise. If there was ever an argument in favor of using printer's ink in a judicial way, your Uncle Sam has presented it through this report.

We presume that in most instances these unsuccessful concerns did not advertise because they were satisfied to drag along. Then came the readjustment period and they found that they very thing which was putting their competitors over the bumps—advertising—had been the one thing they had ignored. The merchants who used printer's ink got rid of war-price stocks at even money or better and were able to stay on their feet. The fellow who had goods that were declining in value daily and didn't have brains enough to use the papers to tell the people that he wanted to get from under took his place with the 90 per cent who are now sadder but wiser in the ways of the business world.

If you want the best reason in the world why you should advertise judiciously and sensibly, Mr. Home Merchant, just sit down and think over Uncle Sam's own figures—that NINETY PER CENT of all business failures in 1920 were of concerns that didn't advertise.

Pennsylvania is pressing close to New York and Massachusetts for the honors as the leading college state in the country.

There are 45 accredited colleges and universities in the state, according to a report compiled by the Department of Education.

With a total attendance of 45,835 students, according to the report for 1920, and a faculty of 3,225 professors and instructors, Pennsylvania becomes at once a bulwark in respect to higher institutions of learning.

Four of the leading universities of the country are located in this commonwealth, the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, the University of Pittsburgh, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania State College, at State College, and Carnegie Institute of Technology, at Pittsburgh.

The three universities of the country that lead Penn with an attendance of 11,324 are Columbia, Chicago and California. Pittsburgh has an attendance of 4,979, Penn State 4,316, and Carnegie Tech, 4,300.

"Pennsylvania hardly can be said to lead other states in its colleges, although it has as many colleges of recognized standing," Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, State Superintendent of Education remarked upon looking over the figures of the department.

"There is not another state with as many accredited universities having a combined faculty and student body with as high a standard as may be found in this state," he said.

With Albright, Bryn Mawr, Bucknell, Dickinson, Duquesne, Franklin and Marshall, Haverford, Juniata, Lafayette, Lebanon Valley, Lehigh, Muhlenburg, Swathmore, Ursinus, Villanova, Washington and Jefferson, and Susquehanna, in addition to the leading four, the state is honey-combed with high class institutions, it was pointed out.

There is not a radius of a hundred miles anywhere in Pennsylvania that will not find one of these universities. The schoolhouse on every hill has been practically replaced by a modern college or university, it was stated.

WOODLAND M. E. CHURCH NEWS

The Epworth League held a very delightful Colonial Social at the home of Miss Pearl Woolridge Monday evening. Each guest was presented with a dainty little souvenir, a picture of George and Martha Washington. There was a large number in attendance and the evening was pleasantly spent with games, social intercourse and music.

During the course of the evening, an entertaining program was rendered under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Varner, president of the Epworth League. The musical numbers were a piano duet by Elizabeth Barger and Besie Baker and piano solo by Miss Mary Baker, which were highly appreciated.

Mrs. Erma Pickles and Fiel Herbert acted out the courtship of Miles Standish in splendid style. Miss Besie Pickles made an admirable Betsy Ross and Miss Vada Owens represented Barbara Fritchie to the delight of everybody. John T. Pickler paid a glowing tribute to George Washington and Mary Phoebe Varner gave an amusing recitation. The program closed with the singing of "America." Dainty refreshments were served. A silver offering was taken and a nice little sum was realized.

The Epworth League is very grateful to Miss Woolridge for offering her home and the hospitable manner in which she entertained us.

The Ladies' Aid will hold a lunch and food sale in Swift's building Saturday afternoon and evening, March 5. Ice cream and cake will be served. Everybody invited.

violation of the liquor law in selling Jamaica ginger, Horke-Vino, Ferro-China, etc., and was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and costs and undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of six months. Permission was given defendant to apply for parole from the jail sentence on payment of the fine and costs.

Sam Mammone, of Madera, entered a plea similar to Amato's. The district attorney urged leniency in his case. Sentence was suspended on payment of the costs.

C. J. McSherry, of Ball Mill, was not quite so lucky. He entered a plea of nolle contendere to a charge of selling Jamaica ginger, etc. He is a former British soldier and suffered several wounds in the world war. His attorney made a plea for leniency but the court soaked him for $500 fine and costs and six months in jail. Permission was given to make application for a parole from the jail sentence upon payment of the fine and costs.

Thomas Marando entered a plea of guilty to violation of the liquor law. He had been selling liquor at his store and also had a number of agents working for him. He was arrested December 18 and entered his plea after the grand jury found a true bill. The district attorney said Marando had continued to sell after his arrest. The records also showed that he had been arrested for liquor law violation several years ago, and that while a plea of guilty had been entered for him by his attorney he objected to same and said he was not guilty at that time.

He was sentenced to pay a fine of $800 and costs and undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of six months. Permission was also given in this case to apply for a parole from the jail sentence on payment of fine and costs.

James Morren, of DuBois, entered a plea of guilty to practicing as a veterinarian without a license from the state board. This was the defendant's third appearance on this charge.

Judge Bell said he knew "Dr." Morren very well and while he was able to qualify under the law, he had

WAS DANGEROUS TO MAKE HIS RUN

Says He Was Weak and Nervous from Indigestion—Gains Thirty-four Pounds

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed one hundred and thirty-seven pounds, but now I tip the scales at one hundred and seventy-one," was the remarkable statement made by John W. Harbison, 1312 Paxton St., W. Philadelphia, motor-man on No. 49 Woodland car, in relating his experience with the medicine to friends while taking his midday lunch at the Liberty restaurant the other day.

"Yes, sir, Tanlac has not only put me in shape to where I can eat this coconut pie or just anything else I want, but it has actually built me up thirty-four pounds in weight and I just can't say enough for it."

"Why, my stomach was in such a terrible condition I couldn't eat anything without bloating and suffering such severe pains it seemed that I couldn't endure it. I also had rheumatism in my legs so bad I could hardly stand up to work my car, and my nerves were so shattered it was really dangerous for me to try to make a run. I suffered terribly from constipation, headaches and dizzy spells, and it looked like I would have to turn in my cap and badge and give up my job entirely."

"Well, the boys down at the barn would tell you what a bad fix I was in but that's all over now. Right after I started taking Tanlac I got better and in a little while was eating anything I wanted without the east trouble. The rheumatism and in fact, all my troubles disappeared and now I am feeling as well as I ever did. Others, of course, may take any medicine they want, but give me Tanlac everytime."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists everywhere.

Wilmer A. Smith, by his attorneys, Miller and Hartwick, began suit in Prothonotary Ralston's office yesterday in which a divorce is asked from Nanmi Ruth Smith. The Smiths were married June 27, 1914, and quit May 28, 1920. Earl McCullough is named as a contributing cause to the divorce action.

District Attorney John C. Arnold filed a petition in the prothonotary's office yesterday in which he asks the court to revoke the license of John H. McCrossin for his hotel at Irwona.

Queer Figures on Kamerun Huts.
The huts of the Kamerun tribe of Africa are decorated with figures which indicate the number of occupants and their relationship. A very large figure in the center stands for the man of the family and other figures for the wives, sons and daughters.

Human Nature in Business.
A plain man, says Fred Kelly in the Nation's Business, who is thoughtful, can usually win a woman away from a handsome devil who is thoughtless and inattentive. NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

Boyd Smith, until within a week past employed in the office of the Crescent Refractories Company, has moved his furniture and family to Pottstown, where he has secured a good position. It is understood he sold his bungalow on McNaull street to the Crescent people. The best wishes of his many Curwensville friends follow the family to their new location.

Dorsey Black left yesterday for Harrisburg. He expects to bring back a big truck which will be used on the construction of state road work.

Isaac Black made a business trip to Tyrone yesterday.

It is announced that the marriage of Miss Edith Patton will take place in Philadelphia, where Mrs. A. E. Patton is now quartered. A honeymoon trip will be made through Europe. The groom to be is one of Pittsburghs leading architects.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church has taken a new tack in holding those 15 cent luncheons. Instead of holding them in the basement of the church, they now hold them in the homes of the members. The women are making a great effort to raise a fund by which some needed repairs can be made to the inside of the congregational and Sunday school rooms. They should be encouraged in their work.

One of our lady friends informed us Monday evening that arrangements had been made by which a general town drive would be made on Thursday in an effort to raise a fund to be given for the purpose of relieving the starving and suffering of the Chinese. A house to house canvass will be made, and it is to be hoped that Curwensville people, who always respond to appeals of this nature, will not stint themselves with their contributions.

Messrs. McKenzie and Smith have disposed of their interest in the pool room in the Kettlerberger block to Messrs. Richards and Berndetta, who took possession of their purchase on Monday and will continue the business at the same stand.

Mrs. John Norris has been confined to her home for some days suffering from a slight attack of grip and a severe cold.

Dr. Erhard was called out of town for several days last and this week. He returned home last evening.

In about two weeks more Dr. J. C. Collins, the able pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, will go to conference. Curwensville people would be pleased to have him returned to this charge for another term. Mr. Collins is a fearless exponent of the gospel and plays no favoritisms in delivering his sermons. All men look alike to him when he is in the pulpit, be they rich or poor, white or black, red or yellow. He has accomplished some good work during his pastorate in Curwensville, as the result of his recent revival meetings is a grand testimonial. He certainly is a hard and enthusiastic worker in the cause and under the banner which he is serving so faithfully. Among the working men he has made many warm friends, one and all would be pleased to have him returned to this charge for another year.

Miss Hilda Anderson, who has been with Mrs. A. E. Patton in Pittsburgh for the past six or seven months, arrived in Curwensville on Monday evening and is stopping at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lottie Byler, North Pine street.

THE GRANARY

A Column of News and Timely Topics for the Man Who Feeds the World

Huntingdon and Armstrong Counties now have infection beside new infections in Cambria and Clearfield counties.

EBENSBURG, Feb. 26—You are interested in the Potato Wart Disease so keep on reading and find out about your old friend the spud. The disease is something every town-man and country farmer wants to know about, and it is a disease that will keep out of your garden and farm.

What is it? A wart is a small disease which attacks the underground parts of the potato plant.

What does it look like? The appearance suggests a small cauliflower. The warts are rough and irregular in shape and rather soft and spongy in texture. They vary in size from masses as large as one's fist to a minute speck. The old scab and the wart are entirely different so do not confuse these two.

Does it attack any other vegetable? Yes, it is known to attack the tomato and the Nightshade but these plants do not suffer any serious damage, nevertheless the germ is kept in working order for the next crop of potatoes in that soil. No, the human being does not contract any disease from the wart unless it will eventually be shrinkage of the pocketbook due to the spread of the disease and the shortage of potatoes.

Where did it come from? European shipments of potatoes in 1911 and 1912. Where is it now located? In 9 counties, 53 towns and 581 gardens in Pennsylvania and in addition to our state it has gone into Maryland and West Virginia. In the western part of our state during the year 1919 infection was found in Nantyglo, Vintondale, Lilly, Dunio and Llanfair in Cambria county; Osceola Mills in Clearfield county; Newtown, Snow Shoe and Claience in Centre County. During the year 1920 infection was found in Beavertown and Lloydell in Cambria County; Smith Mills in Clearfield County; Roberts, Le and Woodvale in Huntingdon County; Yatesboro and Rural Valley in Armstrong county. New cases were also found in the towns infected in 1919.

How can it be stopped? Only by the co-operation of all people and complying with the rules and regulations set forth by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

What are the rules and regulations? The planting and growing of white potatoes within the area quarantined is forbidden except under permit issued by the Secretary of Agriculture or his authorized agent. The digging, lifting, harvesting or removal from the soil of any potatoes grown under such permit is prohibited, except in the presence and with the consent of an authorized inspector, or by his written permission. All potatoes grown within the quarantined area are subject to examination by an official inspector who is empowered to condemn all diseased tubers and plants and to require their sterilization and destruction. Manure, root crop vegetables, potato peckings, or refuse of potatoes of any kind, or any infected soil, or plants with soil about their roots, or any material which could carry the disease, are prohibited movement or removal to any points outside the quarantined area.

Where do we get the planting permit? An inspector will visit all of the towns named to issue a planting permit. The permit contains all the rules and regulations which are printed on the back.

For any information as to the areas under quarantine, permits, etc., write to H. L. Roberts, Potato Quarantine office, Room 203, Cambria Trust Building, Ebensburg, Cambria County, Pa.

Great Secret. A business concern in Easton has this pungent maxim prominently displayed in its front window: "A completed transaction is an asset; unfinished business is a liability." A modern efficiency expert could write a 60,000-word book on that text, and then, really not say much more. The world is full of "starters" who never get anywhere. The big idea is to choose only worth while objectives and then finish what you start.—Albert Sidney Gregg.

WINBURNE LODGE ODD FELLOWS HELD FINE CELEBRATION

Cooper Township Village Boasts of Membership Exceeding 400. Fine Entertainment Provided.

GRAND CHAPLAIN VISITED

Winburne Lodge No. 61, I. O. O. F., held its annual entertainment and banquet in the U. M. W. of A. Hall Friday evening, February 26.

Over 400 members of the local lodge turned out well and visiting members and friends were present from Kylertown, Allport and Grassflat.

The entertainment started with a program that delighted all whose good fortune it was to be present to hear it. The Winburne Sextet sang several songs and the audience showed its admiration through much applause.

Noble Grand C. A. Roos welcomed the visitors and was followed by the Rev. E. L. Ritzman, of Munson, who gave an entertaining and uplifting speech on Odd Fellowship, and the necessity of fraternal organizations.

Miss Sarah Mudge, of Winburne, gave a recitation, "The Jiners," in which the audience in general, and the men in particular, were given to understand how some women enjoy having their husbands join one secret organization after another. Andrew Jacobson, of Grassflat, kept the good thing going with a recitation on traveling and no one was left in doubt about the wonderful education that may be had through travel.

Axel Swanson, of Lanse, accompanied by Mrs. Denning, from Houtzdale, held the interest of all to its highest pitch with a trombone solo such as is not often heard in the vicinity.

Rev. C. E. Cook, grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, gave some very interesting figures about the strength of the order in this state and in an interesting address pointed out its value to the community as an organization, encouraging through its teachings a greater fellowship and sympathy among men.

Immediately after the program lunch was served in a manner that was a credit both to those serving and those being served.

When all appetites had been satisfied the floor was cleared and dancing took up the rest of the evening.

Little Jenn was filled with love and admiration for the tiny baby sister who, she had been told, had been sent her from heaven. The love and admiration changed to disgust, however, when the new arrival discovered that she possessed a strong pair of lungs which she exercised unceasingly. The other day Jenn was overheard to remark to a little playmate "Just listen to her whoop it up! I bet she yelled like that in heaven and the angels chuckled her out."

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" with Louise Price in the role of June, which comes to the Driggs Theater March 2, shows the brilliant and popular dramatist, Eugene Walter, at his best. He has faithfully mirrored the delightful scene of the book, and the scene frame and stage settings arranged are gorgeous indeed.

June's great love for Jack Hale; the jealousy of her cousin Dave; the rough yet sincere affection of her father, Judd Tolliver; the humorous simplicity of Uncle Billy; the quiet strength of Hale; the fugal scenes, the guiding motif of the opposed sides, and the picture of the mountaineer's household, are strikingly impressive by the mobility and breath of their portrayal.

Neither pains nor artistic ability have been spared to give Mr. Walter's play a truly fine presentation, and it enjoyed long runs in Boston, Philadelphia and other cities to capacity business. You see what you imagined in the book, the story of romantic love developed in the heart of a primitive girl in the fastnesses of high encircling purple mountains, the touch of lofty skies, with the lone pine bowing homage to the royal wind, and the mountain brook's silver gleam—June's mirror. The play will be presented by a New York cast. The production is a massive one.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

GREATEST CROWD OF THE SEASON FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Brookville Fans Trying to Arrange for Special Train to Bring Them Over to Championship Game.
PUNXSU SEEKING ALIBI

By Dick Leipold

Brookville basketball fans are making an endeavor to secure a special train to carry the fans to Clearfield for the game there Friday between the Brookville and Clearfield High school teams. The teams are tied for first position in the league and unusual interest attaches to the game. Should Brookville win Punxsu would have an opportunity to tie for first place by winning from Brookville in the last game of the season at Brookville.

That Brookville-Clearfield basketball game at the High school gym on Friday night next will attract the greatest crowd of the season.

Punxsu is still seeking an alibi for the loss of the game to Clearfield Friday night last. Instead of admitting that the best team won, regardless of the closeness of the score, The Spirit prints a comment on the game from the DuBois Express, as follows:

"The P. H. S.-C. H. S. game at Punxsutawney was the thriller of the entire season to date. It was won in the final six seconds of play when Bowes, with his legs crossed and throwing blindly from overhead in an effort to get the ball to his own end of the floor from near the Punxsutawney team's basket, rang the bell with one of those rare shots that are lucky in the extreme at any time, and coming at the deciding moment in a game almost lost, was even more lucky.

Wouldn't that jar you. Especially if you witnessed the game. The winning basket was shot by Bowes within 20 seconds of the final whistle. Punxsu's tactics served to send two men after Neff and Ammerman all the time during the last half and that gave Bowes very much more opportunity than falls to the usual lot of a guard to play down the floor and he made quite a few shots from the floor. He got the ball in a scrimmage down near Punxsu's end of the court and after dribbling rapidly up well beyond the center of the floor he made a perfect shot and the winning goal was the result. While spectacular and stunning to the noisy Punxsu fans it sure was a peach of a shot and Bowes deserves a lot of credit for same, instead of having the shot heralded as a fluke. It was, classy basketball by a classy, who set himself so nicely for the shot and simply made it count when it was needed.

The sporting editor of the Punxsu Spirit accused us of "dying hard" in the write up of the first Clearfield-Punxsu game in which Punxsu won. Did you read the "obituary" of the Punxsu defeat in last Saturday's issue of the Punxsu Spirit? Speaking of "dying hard" Say, the excruciating agony displayed in the jumble of misstatements issued during the writer's death struggle was about the most pathetic little thing we have read for some time.

The Clearfield second team downed the DuBois subs on the high school gym Saturday evening last by the score of 39-13.

LOCAL BOY PLAYED IN SUCCESSFUL PENN STATE SHOW

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 2—Rehabilitation students at the Pennsylvania State College, aided by the efforts of a number of the women students, achieved another dramatic success last week in their presentation of the "Jollies of 1921". Playing to capacity houses on two successive nights, the war veterans have done what no other organization at Penn State had even attempted before. The great success of the performance gives a flying start to the campaign for the erection of a memorial tablet to the 73 Penn State men who gave their lives in the great war, for the Rehab Club voted to donate the bulk of the proceeds of its annual production to that cause.

Among those who took part in the production, which has been class-

WOMEN WHO OVERWORK

"Man may work from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done." In order to keep the home neat and attractive, the children well dressed and tidy, women continually overdo and suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they need help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine with specific value which overcomes many of the worst forms of female complaints, as the letters constantly being published in this paper will prove.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

That Dependable Ford Quality

Ford durability began back in 1903 when Henry Ford started experimenting with Vanadium steel and heat-treating processes. He knew that a more exact tempering of steel for motor car building must be worked out. Vanadium, it was learned, when added to molten steel, gives to that steel a greater toughness and adhesiveness. And now other alloys have been found which are superior to Vanadium. With wear or tear to which it is subject progress is the daily companion. The Ford products—Car, Truck, Tractor—grow in quality daily. Heat-treating tempers each part so that it will best withstand the the Ford Motor Company constanced. Ford chemists and analysts have created formulas and standard specifications for every individual part of the Ford car—not only for the steel but for everything from pneumatic tires to top.

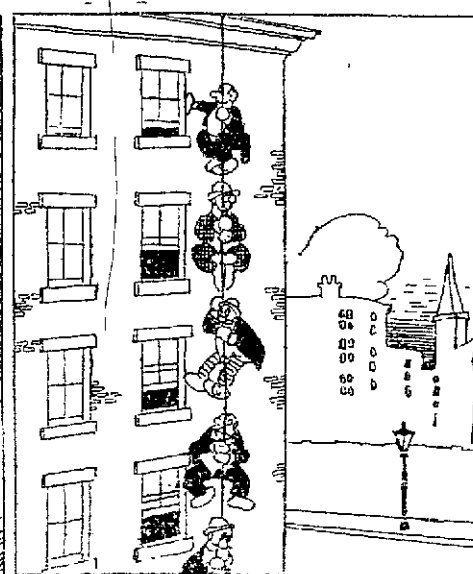

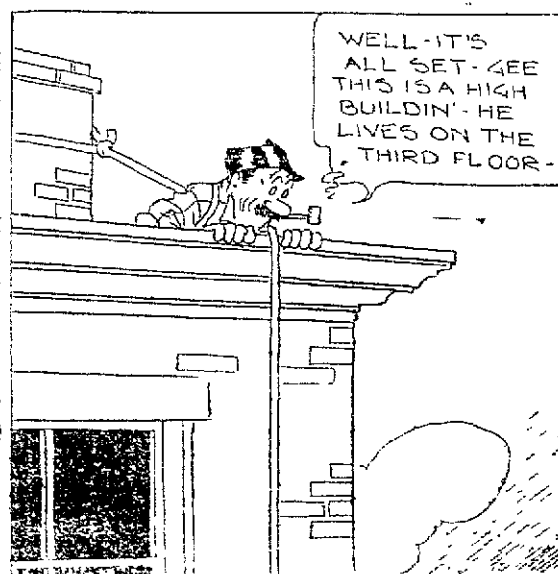

Ford durability isn't a matter of accident, it is a matter of painstaking thoroughness in laboratory and factory. The Ford is a car of precision—of standardized values. Order your Ford car now. No matter how fast they may be made the demand multiplies faster. Order today for we can make fairly prompt deliveries—Runabout, Touring Car, Coupe, Sedan, Truck and Fordson Tractor.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens .Beautifully and Nobody Can Tell—Brings Back its Gloss and Youthfulness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray hair, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as
"Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness.
By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite.
It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

AMERICA FIRST IN DIVORCES

It may be that people in Europe are so engrossed with civil and international wars that they have no time nor energy left to devote to domestic troubles, but the fact remains that not all the divorces in twenty European countries combined equalled the number of divorces granted in America last year.

The prevalence of divorce in America, and the unhappiness caused by it are the themes upon which Langdon Mitchell built his clever satiric drama, "The New York Idea" which comes to the Driggs theatre for a one day run, tomorrow.

GRANDMOTHER KNEW

There Was Nothing So Good for Congestion and Colds
as Mustard

But the old-fashioned mustard-plaster burned and blistered while it acted. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

Musterole does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It is scientifically prepared, so that it works wonders, and yet does not blister the tenderest skin.

Gently massage Musterole in with the finger-tips. See how quickly it brings relief—how speedily the pain disappears.

Use Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).
